Charlie and the Chocolate Factory
Roald Dahl

My favourite childhood book is 'Charlie and the Chocolate Factory' written by Roald Dahl.

I read this book when I was in primary school. I was intrigued by Willy Wonka as he was a very unusual character. I enjoyed his quirky and sneaky personality. He always left me wondering what he was going to do next. The book inspired me to always keep faith in myself that I could do anything. This was because Charlie didn't come from a wealthy background like the other contest winners who bought many tickets. Charlie never gave up and persisted until eventually he was successful in getting a ticket.
