Danny the Champion of the World

Roald Dahl

My favourite book from my childhood is, “Danny the Champion of the World” by Roald Dahl. I loved reading this book because it is very adventurous and mischievous. Danny is a nine year-old boy who grows up with his father. They don’t have a lot of money but it doesn’t stop them from having a lot of fun. I particularly loved the tricks that Danny’s’ father played on Mr Hazel – a very wealthy man who wasn’t very nice to Danny and his father. They would do some mischievous things to get back at Mr Hazel and it makes for a very exciting storyline. I also loved the relationship between the characters (Danny and his dad) as it reminds me of my own relationship with my father.
