

Who am I?

I was born on 18th November 1949 in Eltham, London.

I didn't really enjoy country dancing at primary school. I liked playtimes and lunchtimes.

I was a teacher in a primary school.

I have published more than 70 books, including I Am Telling You They're Aliens, My Mum's Going to Explode, Stuff, The Hundred-Mile-An-Hour Dog and Cartoon Kid.

When I was at university I used to work at a doughnut factory during the holidays.

I was quite injury prone as a child. I once fell from a first floor window and banged my head and broke my arm.

I enjoy meeting my fans in schools and book festivals.

I work in a shed in my garden. It's set up with a large desk, my computer, an armchair, a fridge and a music system.
